Tech For Teens: Computer technology evaluation and training program for high school and college students - August 12 - 16, 2013

Do you know a student who would benefit from training in:

- The latest computer access technology - digital book readers, iPads, optical character recognition
- Strategies for handling PDFs and other formats used on the college level
- Features of access technology as study tools
- Accessing library databases for research
- Tracking assignments with calendar features
- Formatting documents

During the week of Aug. 12 - 16, 8:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m., instructors from the Access Technology Center will provide 30 hours of evaluation and/or training on computer equipment for taking notes, downloading and reading textbooks, and creating documents. Dormitory space is available for students who are unable to commute.
